

This is an online weekly discussion of current issues in the news. A news article (in English) will be sent to all students each week by a group email account (your email address is not visible to other members). A few key questions to start the conversation/discussion will be provided by the instructor. You will be expected to express your thoughts and ideas about the news article. Students can also pose questions for the entire class to ponder and discuss if they wish.

The news might be local or global in scope and topics vary widely: trends in politics, science, entertainment, education, health & medicine, society, the arts, the environment, etc. Although the article for class discussion will be in English, students unfamiliar with the news topic may also do additional reading about it in the Japanese news in order to have a deeper understanding of the issue before discussing it with peers.
